BEST BABIES TO ATTEND SCHOOL

Will Be Seen Sept. 18, When Kindergartens Open

A goodly proportion of the best babies will be school boys and girls when the Glendale city schools open the 18th of September for many of them will be in kindergartens if they do not enter the first grade.

A new kindergarten is being added this year at Acacia avenue, making eight in all. Last year the kindergarten at Columbus Avenue was so large an assistant teacher was required. The children can be received as pupils at four and one-half years of age or three months before that age. The average attendance in most of the kindergartens is 25.

Miss Annie Fuelscher, of 627 North Isabel street, left Tuesday morning for a 10-day outing at Mt. Whitney. She is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Hoyt of Adams street. They plan to motor as far as a car can go, then will go on horseback into the mountains for some distance.

SWIMMING POOL IS WINNING ITS WAY

Proving Popular Spot On Glendale Map These Warm Days

The new municipal swimming pool on Patterson avenue is proving the most popular spot in Glendale during the present heat wave. The morning session at the plunge accommodates a large majority of the kiddies of Glendale. In the afternoon the older folks frolic in the water.

Manager L. F. James of the plunge is leaving nothing undone to make the plunge safe and sanitary. The pool is drained three times a week and thoroughly scrubbed. Every night fresh water is run into it.

The water contains absolutely no chemicals that might be dangerous to the eyes. No effort is spared that will increase the safety of the patrons.

A nurse is on duty in the bathhouse during each session. She examines each bather's throat before allowing him to enter the pool. This examination is to prevent anyone with contagious diseases, such as diphtheria, entering the pool. A lifeguard is on duty in the plunge at all times. He keeps a constant watch on the children and adults who are not proficient swimmers. He assists those just learning to swim and instructs proficient swimmers in fancy diving at times.

That the pool is proving to be popular is proven by the fact that bathers come from Hollywood, Pasadena, Los Angeles and even from as far away as Alhambra to enjoy the luxury of bathing in the cool waters.

The locker rooms and showers are kept immaculate. The shower room is of white tile. Wet bathing suits and towels are not allowed to lie around on the floor a minute. As soon as a bather discards his or her suit it is picked up, run through the wringer and thrown in the laundry bin. These suits are laundered and sterilized daily.

Night sessions have been started at the pool and are proving popular with the business men. On three nights a week the pool remains open until 8:30. These evening sessions are attracting as large a crowd as do the afternoon periods.

Patrons of the pool, after one dip, express their gratitude to the city officials for providing relief to the citizens of Glendale from the sweltering heat of Southern California summer.

SIERRA AVENUE FOLKS PETITION

Residents of the Sierra avenue district filed a petition with the city council on Monday night asking that an election be called to vote bonds for a water system in that district. The city attorney as directed by the council to draft these proceedings at once and a date for the election will be set.

This is the second time that proceedings for a water works bond in the Sierra avenue district has been started. The first time the proceedings were declared faulty and ordered refiled.

Glendale Music Company Loans Piano for Entertainment

Mr. Salamacia, of the Glendale Music company, has generously consented to loan a piano to the Glendale Press this evening for use on the sidewalk in front of the building for the purpose of helping entertain the people during the intervals. The KFAC orchestra is going to also furnish entertainment with some of their syncopated harmony for which they are fast climbing the ladder to fame.

Irresponsibility Is Theme for Mr. Foley in Listening Post

In "The Listening Post" tonight James W. Foley opens up a new line of thought. "Suppose," says he, "that the earth was utterly irresponsible, had no need to regard orbit or time, or anything like that, just went careening off into space of its own free will," and with this flying start he likens it to the individual who goes wobbling, staggering and stumbling through life, who runs fast today and slow tomorrow.

Mr. Foley can draw a sharp lesson, a lasting one, and it would be well for the readers of this newspaper to study his column each evening. You will also find his verse particularly pleasing.

Henry James discusses the news of the day and cites Booth Tarkington's statement that a writer should have a side line. Mr. James takes exception to this and gives his reasons.

There are other features on the editorial page, all interesting and you are recommended to read them. It's a good page.

PRESS-NEWTON IS SPREADING JOY FAR AND WIDE

Pasadena Invalid Writes He Gets "Kick" Out of Glendale's Music

How the Press-Newton station is helping to make life bright to hundreds of people throughout nearly two thousand miles, was shown yesterday by a letter from an invalid in Pasadena. His letter follows:

231 N. Mentor Ave.
Pasadena, Calif.
August 25.

Radio KFAC, Glendale.

Dear KFAC:

I have been listening in to your station quite regular ever since you started, and while you were very weak at the beginning, you come in fine now and have been for several weeks.

I am confined to a wheel chair and spend most of my time with my radio set, which consists of a detector, two-step amplification, and a magnovox. I want to report to you that your quality of modulation is first class. I have heard a great many orchestras (not phonograph records) broadcasted from several different stations and as a rule they have not been good. The different instruments seem to clash with one another, producing harmonies which are very unpleasant, and so many times where you are expected to hear the lead instruments, which carry the air, such as the violin or cornet, come out strong, they will be completely drowned out, with some other instrument, and you don't know whether they are playing the "Wabash Blues" or some other blues.

Last Wednesday evening I listened in to your program, which consisted of the KFAC orchestra, and I want to tell you it was simply great.

I had quite a little crowd here in my dental laboratory that evening and among them were several radio fans, and they all agreed that it was the best music they had ever heard over a radio, and I must say that I never have heard anything come in with more distinction and clearness. I could distinguish the different instruments from one another, which is cery uncommon with this class of music. I want to say also that the announcer at KFAC station deserves a compliment for the pleasant manner and pep in which he talks and announces. He talks as if he took an interest in his work and to make a long story short, I would imagine he would be a good scout to take along on a week's fishing and camping trip and that's saying a good deal, believe me.

I get a great kick out of this radio business, and I want to inform you that your station is placed high up on my list as to quality of modulation, audibility and class of program.

If any of you happen over this way and have the time, I would be pleased to have you call and inspect my set and listen in.

Wishing you success, I am,
Yours very truly,
D. I. Wadsworth.

LIGHT VOTE MARKS OPENING OF POLLS IN GLENDALE DURING EARLY MORNING

Balloting Increases in Volume as Day Advances; Voters Are Moving Steadily Toward the Polls as the Noon Hour Arrives

CHARLES C. MOORE LEADS, IT IS REPORTED

Calls for Automobiles Pour Into Headquarters, Making It Necessary to Draft Cars From Partisans for Hurried Trips to Ballot Boxes

A light vote followed the opening of the polls at 6 o'clock this morning, and though gradually increasing as the day progressed, reached only approximately 10 per cent by noon. Continuous calls were received at the Moore-for-Senator headquarters for machines to take voters to the polls.

Some Glendalians were so awake to their duty that they cut short their vacations in order to be home in time to vote. Among these were R. L. McCourt, who came up from Balboa for the event, and Mrs. Henry W. Yarick, who just arrived home from an outing today.

Workers at the polls say that while a light vote was cast during the morning it is believed after 5 p. m. a heavy vote would be cast.

Many registered voters have informed election voters that they do not intend going to the polls until the sun goes down and it is cooler. A check of two of the largest precincts in the city show less than 20 per cent of the registered voters in the precincts have balloted. Each precinct has more than 300 voters registered and in one case 53 had balloted at noon and in the other only 46 votes had been cast.

The polls will be open until 7 this evening, and anyone wishing a means of conveyance may call Glen. 2797 or Glen. 97 and cars will be sent for them. But all voting closes promptly at 7 o'clock. The Moore-for-Senator organization also provides a car for each of the precincts in Glendale, and voters may also phone to their own polling places.

"Glendale must get out to the polls today and express her intelligence, for these primaries in many cases decides the winner of the November election. This is entirely true in the case of Moore and Johnson. Southern California

The vote up to noon was not more than one-sixth of the total. A few of the precincts visited showed this:

Precinct No. 27—315 West Cerritos, showed 46 votes out of a possible 300. Only 8 democratic ballots had been called for.

No. 24—1006 South Brand, 68 votes, out of a possible 415; 43 were republican, 6 democratic.

No. 20—341 Riverdale drive, 53 votes.

No. 21—123 West Maple, 59 votes, 8 of them democratic.

No. 25—337 West Acacia, 52 votes.

No. 26—1321 S. San Fernando road, 26 votes, 2 democratic.

must wake up and make her vote for Charles C. Moore strong, in order to offset the much talked-of Johnson sentiment of San Francisco and northern California. Remember that the nomination of Moore today is really equivalent to his election to the senate," said W. D. Root, Moore organizer, this morning.

FREEZING KNUCKLE CRASHES TRUCK INTO POST

Driver Leaps to Safety as Machine Drives Into Hydrant

A broken lamp, a decapitated fire hydrant and a demolished truck are the results of the freezing of the steering knuckle on a seven ton truck loaded with watermelons at an early hour Tuesday morning. The accident occurred at San Fernando road and El Bonita avenue.

Herman Seeman, 717 Sanford avenue, Los Angeles, was driving a truck loaded with melons in to Los Angeles. The steering knuckle of his truck froze and the heavy machine headed for the curb. When Seeman saw that the machine was uncontrolable he shut off the power, threw the machine out of gear, set the breaks and jumped to safety. The heavy truck struck a metal lamp post, breaking it off at its base. From the post it crashed into the fire hydrant decapitating it and letting loose a stream of water that threatened to inundate the immediate vicinity. The truck finally hit a pepper tree and ended its wild rambling.

People living in the vicinity notified the police. Superintendent of Plant and Production P. Dieterich was notified. He made a hurried trip to the scene and turned off the water. The damage to the lamp post and hydrant was appraised by him. After putting up a deposit to cover the amount of damage, the driver of the truck was allowed to go by the police as they claim that he was not responsible for the accident.

GREY'S RELATION ON WAY TO CITY

Word was received Monday night by Chief of Police John D. Fraser that Mrs. Mary A. Grey, believed to be the wife of George E. Grey, who committed suicide Monday morning, is on her way to Glendale from Salt Lake City. A card was found among the dead man's effects asking that Mrs. Grey be notified in the event of his illness or death. A telegram was sent to her by Chief Fraser. In response she wired the police department to hold the body, as she would arrive to take charge of it.

Chief Fraser said on Tuesday morning that the fact of the woman signing the telegram as Mrs. Mary A. Grey, indicates that she is the wife of the dead man. His age precludes the possibility of the women being his mother.

Until the arrival of Mrs. Grey the body will remain at the L. C. Scovern Undertaking establishment.

TWO CLERKS ARE ADDED TO POST OFFICE

George Allan and Miss Nellie Black Are Appointed

The Glendale postoffice has been advised that the employment of two more clerks has been authorized by the department at Washington. One of these is George M. Allan who is being transferred from Salt Lake City and who is expected to arrive here today. The other is Miss Nellie Black, who has been serving as a substitute clerk at the window and who will continue in that position but as a member of the regular staff.

Assistant Postmaster Hallett says mails are coming in regularly, but they are late. It takes mail longer to come from the east because the trains are running slower than normal.

C. OF C. DIRECTORS TO HAVE LUNCHEON

Members of the directorate of the chamber of commerce are meeting for luncheon together at the chamber today as usual.

No list of applications for membership will be presented today, but there will be quite a grist of matters to be considered. This will include a resolution from the Modesto chamber of commerce in regard to state highways, and a resolution from the United States chamber of commerce concerning the soldiers' bonus bill, which that chamber is opposing.

GLENDALE ELKS ADD FIVE MEMBERS

Five candidates were initiated into the Glendale lodge of Elks at their regular meeting Monday night.

There was a splendid attendance and following the regular business session, these five candidates were initiated, the work being put on by the officers of Pasadena lodge.

This was followed by a vaudeville entertainment put on by members of the Los Angeles lodge, and was most amusing.

PENN. CLUB PICNIC

Dr. F. M. Collier, president of the Pennsylvania club, wishes to announce that due to the fact that September 4 is a legal holiday and so many members wish to go away into the mountains or beaches, it seems best to defer the club picnic until Saturday, September 16.

Is Your Little One Better Than This Little Girl?

LOUISE LA PLANCHE

Beautiful little Louise La Planche, three years old, who was born in Los Angeles and who is pictured herewith, is the daughter of Mrs. Ann La Planche of 1244 South Orange street, Glendale. She was entered for the best baby contest August 25.

In looks and ways this baby is much like her father, who is of French descent but a true American, who was born in San Francisco. She inherits his gay temperament, is fond of music and dancing and is a good little mixer, making friends wherever she goes. She is very healthy, has beautiful curly hair and dark brown eyes and is the only child of her parents, who have recently come to Glendale. Her father is now and for fifteen years has been in the employ of the Los Angeles Telephone company.

NATIONAL MOTIF OF EXCHANGE CLUB TOLD

Secretary Harter of Nation-wide Organization Is Guest Here

Members of the Glendale Exchange club were highly honored at their noon luncheon at the Broadway Inn on Monday by having with them as their special guest Harold M. Harter, national secretary of the organization of Exchange clubs.

After the luncheon Mr. Harter gave an impressive 20-minute talk on the plans and purposes of the club, laying special emphasis on the service which this organization is rendering in every city where a branch has been organized. The word "Exchange" as used in the name of this club means an exchange of ideas and the fostering of fellowship between the members, each feeling that it is his duty to render service in an unselfish way to his fellows.

Another point made clear by him was that of the 100 per cent Americanism which is one of the foundation stones of the organization. Plans are now under way to have branches of the club in all leading cities of the Pacific coast. In closing his remarks, Mr. Harter made a formal presentation of a charter emblem to the local club. This is a bronze tablet bearing the inscription "Unity for Service," which is the motto of the club. This motto now graces the west wall of the Broadway Inn, where the members now gather for a meeting each week.

Other guests were Earl Hill, secretary of the Los Angeles club, and Dr. H. R. Boyer, recently returned from Europe, who gave a brief talk telling of the deplorable conditions all over that country. He told the members that they should be glad that they live in America, and especially in Glendale.

Secretary William H. Block read a communication from secretary Rhoades, of the chamber of commerce, asking that 5 members of the club be present at the chamber of commerce forum luncheon to be held Tuesday noon, September 5. James A. Howarth, G. C. McConnell, E. F. Heisser, Herman Psenner, and S. F. Bell were appointed by President Keily to attend this luncheon.

George W. Rich was also present as a guest. He now lives in Glendale, but formerly made Toledo, Ohio, his home. He is an old-time friend of Mr. Harter.

After adjournment, Photographer Glenn R. Dolberg took a picture of the members of the club in front of the city hall.

Members present were W. B. Kelly, J. A. Howarth, G. C. McConnell, W. H. Block, W. C. Waring, A. B. Castile, J. C. May, G. H. Thomas, George Harness, E. J. Smith, R. E. Johnston, W. Q. Widdows, Ed N. Radke, Arthur Sherborne, E. F. Heisser, G. M. Lindsay, Dr. H. R. Boyer, Herman Psenner, George B. White, George Whitaker, Fred E. Hoyt, A. Gelmor, and W. Calire Anspach.

GRAND PARENTS JOIN IN ENROLLING BEST BABIES IN BIG SWEEPSTAKE RACE

Enroll Youngsters When Parents Fail to Grasp Opportunity to Secure Fame and Fortune for Their Little Ones in Great So. California Competition

OLD FOLKS PASS JUDGMENT ON LITTLE TOTS

Mrs. Flora Pixley Is Proud of Her Granddaughter and Insists That She Will Win the Contest, So She Enters Little Lucile Despite Her Parents

By GERTRUDE GIBBS

The grandparents appreciate what babies mean to the world even more than do the parents. They are far enough removed from the generation of their grandchildren to get a perspective and to realize that the only way to "carry on" after we have done our bit, is through those that come after us, the children and the grandchildren whom we can influence to contribute to the world material, intellectual or spiritual gifts. If they fail in this regard, they are the wasters of the world.

This is why the grandparents study the babies so thoroughly and why they are always trying to forecast a great future for them.

One of the babies entered Monday afternoon was little Lucile Pixley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Pixley, who through modesty, underrated their child, in the opinion of her grandmother, Mrs. Flora Pixley, and so when the father and mother did not live up to their obligations in the premises, she made good the default and entered the grandchild in the best baby contest. The little girl, who has blue eyes with long dark lashes, is but eight months old and is all sweetness and light. She has never had a touch of colic, and has never been sick. She has a method of locomotion all her own, a combination of creep and walk which is very effective.

Jack Walter Hartley, endowed with dark hair and eyes, but fair of skin, is all boy, his mother says. When he doesn't get his dinner every three hours he squeals good and loud to let the neighborhood know what's wrong with the world.

Edward A. McMurphy, son of H. A. McMurphy of 130 North Olive street, though but 15 months old, is already a good ball player. He weighs 28 pounds and will probably be a heavy man unless he trains down for team work. He says a good many words and is rapidly learning to talk. His parents are newcomers in Glendale, having migrated here from Oregon, but they have taken the Press ever since they arrived and are ready to boost for everything inaugurated by the paper and the town that will advertise this part of the state as a home center. The grandparents of the little boy live in Hollywood, but Glendale exercised superior attractions and won them as residents. Mr. McMurphy is superintendent of steel and concrete work on large contracts in Hollywood.

When the Shriners of Hollywood, Pasadena, San Pedro, Long Beach, Los Angeles, Eagle Rock, Burbank and Glendale gather at the new city park of Glendale on Wednesday afternoon and evening, August 30, to celebrate the first annual basket picnic to be given by the Shrine club of Glendale, they will be royally entertained with a program such as only Shriners are noted for. There will be sports for Shriners, their ladies and the kids too; there will be music of numerous descriptions; there will be special stunts, funny clowns and many novel surprises which the committees in charge refuse to divulge, which however, will add to the enjoyment wonderfully. Many other late numbers will be played during the evening, space not permitting to mention them.

This picnic for all Shriners that can attend regardless of where they belong, but it is only for Shriners and their families and all others will be refused admission unless by special invitation.

Mr. Shriner, don't fail to be there or you will miss the greatest time you have ever had, so put on your fez, pack your lunch basket and come out prepared to go the limit if you are a live Shriner, for the lid is off.

Those that remember the last entertainment given by the Shrine Club of Glendale for the ladies, fully realize that the ladies especially will be entertained at this picnic in a manner long to be remembered and will be heartily welcomed by a ladies' committee.

That the ladies who will be visitors may be properly welcomed, a reception and entertainment committee made up of the wives of members, has been appointed as follows: Mrs. L. H. Wilson, chairman, assisted by Mesdames Vandewater, Ripley Jackson, William Rattray, Mattison B. Jones, Moyse, Peckham, Shively, Crofton, Wessel, Hazelton and T. D. Watson.

CREDIT MEN TAKE VACATION TODAY

Association Meets But No Business Is Transacted

Members of the Glendale Credit association met Tuesday at noon in session extraordinary. No business was transacted. Business was not even mentioned. Aside from the weekly discussion of names the members met in social session.

In the absence of the president, Walter Potter presided. There were about 40 members present and coats were conspicuous by their absence. Contrary to custom, there was no program arranged for the meeting. It was announced at the beginning of the lunch that the meeting would be in the nature of a vacation—and it was.

Incidentally the members of the association are saying that the luncheon served them was one of the best that the organization has had this season.

Truths in Epigram

A wise man never refuses anything to necessity. — Syrus (42 B. C.).

An honest man's word is as good as his bond.—Cervantes (1547-1616).

Nothing is so firmly believed as what we least know.—Montaigne (1533-1592).

Speak the truth and shame the devil.—Rabelais (1495-1553).

THE GREAT DAY

Today affairs of great moment are being shaped in this state. Men will be chosen at the primaries as candidates for election. Many will be elected by the primary vote. The offices range from the most humble to the most important within the power of voters to bestow. It is too late now to give counsel; too early to have any definite knowledge of results.

The candidates supported in this column were endorsed in every instance because of qualities and records that seemed to make them best fitted for the positions they sought. But human judgments vary. Circumstances that appeal to one voter may make no appeal whatever to another. So as the ancient saying has it "You never can tell."

With abounding faith in the greatness of California, and in the intelligence of its citizens, the results whatever they may be, will be accepted for the present without demur. If some of them fail to be pleasing, the right inheres in every citizen to do his or her best to correct mistakes next time, meanwhile acknowledging ungrudgingly the right of the people to make their own decisions.

UNNECESSARY EXPLANATIONS

Many explanations of the recent advance in the wages of steel workers are being made. All of them seem to ignore the simple fact that employers have been known to pay reasonable wages on the ground that such wages are due to men willing and competent to earn them. It is true that considerable pressure had been brought to bear upon the steel concerns, notably by church people who made detailed investigation. The report of the committee censured with great severity the working conditions and the scale of pay.

One authority says that the increase is due to a desire to justify the tariff. It is to be pointed to as an example of the manner in which tariff protects the laborers. Or it is an effort to discredit unions. Or it is laying the ground for an advance in the price of steel.

Such protection as the tariff is likely to extend to labor is that it may keep alive some industry that otherwise would languish. For example, in the absence of protection the American dye industry might as well be considered as formally abolished. The new wage scale could not be regarded as excuse for adding to the cost of steel: it might be used as a pretext, but consumers would not accept it. As to the point about the unions, it seems not to be a point at all.

Suppose, just for the novelty of the thing, there be conceded the reasonableness of the theory that a corporation has undertaken to be fair with its men in the absence of coercion. Such conduct is not out of range of possibility.

STUDY OF THE STARS

Scientific investigation of the heavens has brought the universe into the dazzling light of knowledge. No longer are the stars regarded as mere gleaming points, set in the azure for its adornment, and for the edification of mortals crawling on a cosmic speck. Many secrets may yet lurk in remote spaces, but as to many things once hidden, the veil has been torn away. Certain stars are known to be so stupendous that in one of them might be enclosed the earth and the sun that shines upon it, with all the millions of miles that intervene.

Popular astronomy is more fascinating than any novel. The mind is enlarged and the soul uplifted by contemplation of immensity.

Just now the evening skies have been presenting a rare and beautiful picture made by the apparent juxtaposition of brilliant planets. The untrained eye might not have observed, nor the untrained mind been held by the display. Astronomy translates the planets in their present positions into an expression of celestial glory. That the astronomer has learned so much, is a tribute to human intelligence. He had computed the time at which the aspect at which so many have gazed would come to view. He is aware of the cycles that must pass before again such aspect can be possible.

It is rather disheartening to the hope of a developing human intelligence, that the astrologer should at this opportunity, project his pretenses into a striking situation. He tells of the effect of the planets upon body and mind; how their position affects mundane destinies, making or marring the individual. Of course, his preachment is banal and misleading nonsense. Astrology is no science. The potency of a star to shape character, or bring fortune, is exactly the potency of the hind foot of a graveyard rabbit. It is singular that, considering the advance in thought, the recital of absurd tradition, should be able still to make an impression even on the more ignorant.

AMERICAN SHIPS IN THE ORIENT

A shipping expert familiar with traffic conditions of the Orient has arrived in this country. He brings the cheerful news that the American flag is a familiar sight all along the Yang-tse river, reaching the great ports of China. There are far more of such ships than of any other nationality. This is different from the note of pessimism touching the American marine; the accustomed dolorous note so likely to be sounded.

That American ships should lead in traffic with the Chinese is wholly natural and proper. Any other course would indicate a sad lack of enterprise. Were Americans to permit themselves to be crowded out of that field the fault would be their own. They have many advantages. In the first place, there are plenty of ships available. The number left over from the war caused ships to be put on the market at low figures. In instances the government supplied the ships under conditions easy to meet.

The harbor at San Pedro is directly in the part of trade between the United States and the Far East. Its facilities are being enlarged with a view to keeping pace with the demands upon them. The Chinese are friendly towards this country. Years ago they had learned to call it "the land of the beautiful flag." It has been considerate in its dealings with them. It had sedulously refrained from cheating them. It has protected them against attempted impositions. Thus the tradition of friendship has been kept alive.

This country is in position to get a large share of Oriental trade and to retain it indefinitely. Responsibility for failure to do so could belong to none but the individuals and groups engaged in conduct of the revivified merchant marine.

THE CUSSER

By DR. FRANK CRANE

There is a guy by the name of Hopkins who has discovered the only solution of our economic and financial problems.

DR. FRANK CRANE

Just what the solution is does not matter. Suffice it to say it is one of those cock-sure ideas with which we are all familiar.

Every once in a while he writes me a letter which does me good.

He gives me hail Mary with a high hand and a stretched out arm.

In my preaching days I discovered that the people who came up and spoke to me after I had preached a sermon were the ones who said nice things, while those who thought that my discourse was punk went away and said nothing. I am glad that I discovered this in time to save myself from being a self-satisfied goop.

People write me letters of appreciation and I like them. No human being is averse to being told how clever he is. And if he makes that claim, don't believe him. We all like flattery a monkey likes sugar.

But it is not good for us. It is likely to give us fatty degeneration of the cerebrum.

Hence Hopkins is a valued tonic. I know several people I wish would get acquainted with him. He would do them good.

Here is a chunk from his last letter:

"How ready are you bought and paid for editors to admit your ignorance! You bask in an absurd pose of modesty and try to achieve the uttermost glory of saying absolutely nothing with a few flourishes and embellishments that smack of originality.

"How careful you are not to step on the toes of your clientele! That wouldn't be business, although I suspect that it would be MANHOOD.

"You are as slippery as an eel, as cold-blooded as a lizard, as unoriginal as a busybody ant. All you newspaper men are as much alike in your thorough devotion to everything connoted by gold idolatry as peas in a pod.

"Here is some real wisdom for you to digest:

"Idolaters of gold have faces of lead.

"The only devil is the personified greed idol in the hearts of the people.

"The real religion of the world is never profaned. No one was ever heard to remark 'By gold, how hot it is today!'"

Every once in a while, when I get a new suit of clothes and look at myself in the glass and begin to smirk and think I am some pumpkins, I catch myself in time and go and read one of Hopkin's letters.

Hopkins, I should say, would be very valuable as a wife.

W. M. F.

"In your article of July 10 should not the verb be 'have' rather than 'had' in the following sentence? 'A number of friends of ours had inquired regarding your little article . . .' I enjoy your column very much and benefit by it. Occasionally the answers are not very enlightening as was the case with the usage of 'lie' and 'lay' on July 10."

Mr. Nicholson

Your criticism of "had" as it appeared in Miss McLaughlin's query is just. Had is used to symbolize time of action taking place previous to a past action already mentioned or about to be mentioned; as, a number of friends of ours had inquired about it when I last wrote you. I gave many examples of the use of lie and lay that one might be able to reach one's conclusion inductively. In an article published since the receipt of your letter the problem was again discussed. Use lie (present), lay (past), lying (participle), have lain (perfect), when a person desires to convey the idea of reclining, or when that person is speaking of a place, thing, or idea as reclining or resting in a certain place; as, I lie down; he lay down yesterday; they are lying down; she has lain down; the book lies on the table; the ball was lying near you all the time; patriotism should never lie dormant; the ball has lain there for a long time. Lay means to place; as, I lay the book on the table (present tense); I laid the matter before him yesterday; I am laying everything on the table! I have laid it down. The verb lie (to tell a falsehood); he lie; he lied; he is lying; he has lied. I shall be glad to hear from W. M. F. again as to whether he (or she) now understands the uses of these verbs.

THE LISTENING POST

We'll suppose the earth was utterly irresponsible.

Had no need to regard orbit or time or anything like that.

Just went careening off into space at its own free will.

Now running rapidly and now slowly and now stopping to rest.

Without any regard for the rest of us here.

* * *

We'll suppose that the earth obeyed no laws.

Following nothing but its own sweet will.

Revolved a thousand miles an hour today and five thousand tomorrow and a mere hundred on the day following.

* * *

We'll suppose all that and see what a pitiful muddle we would all be in.

Two sunrises in one day or three or four and none at all for three or four days.

One day all light and another day all dark.

* * *

Spring in Winter and then Autumn.

Or two Springs in one year and none at all in the next.

Forty below zero today and a hundred in the shade tomorrow.

Fine life for us indeed!

* * *

Well——

Fortunately the earth has a big responsibility.

A billion and a half of us to supply with air and sunlight and seasons.

And to attend to its business regularly and evenly.

Otherwise we should go, all of us, dropping into space.

* * *

We might run head on into another planet.

And that would spoil all of our plans for months ahead.

We might freeze to death or burn up.

We might just get to living happily and then starve to death.

Or lose ourselves in a world of darkness.

* * *

But every morning we look out and there is the sun, right on schedule time.

Or we know it is there even if we can't see it.

And every night we can look confidently for twilight and dusk and dark.

So we may have rest and sleep.

And the season of planting and fruition and fulfillment and rest follow each other in orderly sequence.

* * *

The earth is a pretty obedient and well disposed planet.

And it has a sense of responsibility.

And where, say where, would the earth and the rest of us be, without its sense of responsibility?

The proper discharge of its obligations?

If it went blundering, wobbling, staggering and stumbling through its orbit?

So responsibilities are good things.

They tend to insure steadiness and sureness and sanity.

* * *

And as with the earth, so with the individual.

What is the ultimate fate of the individual who goes wobbling and staggering and stumbling through life?

Who runs fast today and slow tomorrow?

Who keeps in no orbit?

* * *

It is good that we have responsibilities.

That something within us or without compels the presence at the forge or the bench or the plow or the desk five or six days in the week.

That we need to attend pretty regularly to our tasks to get a living.

* * *

Otherwise we should go blindly and stupidly and stumblingly and dangerous to our doom.

Like moths flying into a light.

JAMES W. FOLEY.

SONGS OF THE POETS

Rivals—By William Walsh (1663-1708)

Of all the torments, all the cares,
With which our lives are cursed;
Of all the plagues a lover bears,
Sure rivals are the worst.
By partners in each in each other kind
Afflictions easier grow;
In love alone we hate to find
Companions of our woe.

Sylvia, for all the pangs you see
Are laboring in my breast,
I beg not you would favor me,
Would you but slight the rest.
How great soe'er your rigors are,
With them alone I'll cope;
I can endure my own despair,
But not another's hope.

Plants' Fragrance Creates Own Cooling System

Fragrance of flowers regulates their temperature, thinks Dr. Maxwell Adams, professor of chemistry of the University of Nevada. He bases this belief on his recent experiments with the essential oils of certain desert plants. These oils serve as a protection against the extreme heat of noon-day and the chill of night.

The vapor of the oils which give plants their odor absorbs more heat than ordinary air, he says. Rose oil absorbs 36 times as much heat and anisol 352 times as much. By surrounding itself with a layer of such odor filled air, the plant reduces the amount of heat which reaches it in the daytime and also obtains a sort of air blanket to protect it against the chilly desert night.

Not only this, but air filled with the vapor of essential oil also hinders the passage of water vapor from the plant, as water containing small amounts of the oils evaporates more slowly than pure water. Fifteen experiments showed that one drop of oil added to 50 cubic centimeters of water caused the evaporation to be one-fourteenth less than that of pure water.

These oils are not found in desert plants only, although these plants are especially rich in them, many of the leading commercial products of this sort coming from the arid region growths. This led Dr. Adams to the investigation of the subject. Such trees as pines, while native of moist regions, are very odorous; but they are also drouth resisting, he points out.

Fragrant odor of flowers is most often explained as an attraction to insects which carry the pollen from flower to flower, but the occurrence of odorous oils in the wood and bark of plants cannot be explained in this way. Even in the case of flowers in moist regions, it is probable, he thinks, that the odor may serve to retard evaporation and lengthen the pollenization period.

The occurrence of essential oils is not peculiar to the plants of the arid parts of western America, but those occurring in other arid districts are rich in oils. Eucalyptol, frankinsense, cardamons and other oils of commerce comes from the arid region. Wormwood, lemongrass and other plants which are cultivated for their oils originated in the arid districts. It is true that many plants notably the conifers, are indigenous to the humid regions, but many of the pines are drouth resisting. Pinus monaphylla is found on the dry mountain ranges of southern Nevada and pinus sabiniana grows far down on the foothills bordering the Sacramento and San Joaquin valleys of California.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

BRITAIN'S CHANCE

[Toronto Mail and Empire]

Britain now has a chance to pay off a big part of her debt to this continent by exporting coal. If the American coal strike lasted for a year or two, British coal would put a big balance to the Motherland's credit.

CHALLENGE TO THE DRYS

[The Continent]

If to people who are inclined to favor wine and beer the truth were made plain—which every bootlegger knows—that a wine and beer privilege in the national prohibiton law would render it quite hopelessly impossible to stop the whisky trade, undoubtedly most of them would vote for strict enforcement of the law as it stands.

The Literary Digest says its correspondents voting for modification quite commonly indicate that they would be entirely unwilling to have the saloon come back. There shows the effect of deceit—the idle notion that beer and wine could be sold without reviving the saloon. That, too, ought to be shown up for its folly. What The Digest's poll does unmistakably indicate is the need of more intelligent prohibition teaching among the masses to offset wet propaganda. If the apparently adverse drift of The Digest's straw election wakes up prohibition leaders to get to work again on cultivating and reviving public sentiment, it will be a great boost to the dry cause.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

When Booth Tarkington says that a writer should do something on the side in order to make a living, undoubtedly he is jesting. Probably a small portion of men in business are able at the end of the year to show such net gains as have become regular with Tarkington, and a few others.

HENRY JAMES

The business man has to have capital, and turn this over in the effort to profit. He has to employ helpers, pay rent, buy goods or equipment, meet freight and advertising bills. A bad season is likely to sweep him into the discard.

To be a writer one needs the natural endowment, and necessarily an education of a sort. His material investment is negligible; some paper, a typewriter, and he is ready. If he loses in one venture, he has lost little but his time.

In order to be able to set down $5000 on the right side of the ledger, the business man must have a volume of trade running far into the thousands. He handles large sums, but only a moiety of the total clings to his fingers.

Doing "something on the side" is not easy. People with jobs to give out, are looking for assistants that will devote their whole energies to the work, and not essay doing it "on the side." The effort to serve two masters satisfies neither of the masters.

The person who has ability to write stuff good enough to be in demand, can make a living by writing. If he can't write so that his output is acceptable, he would be wise not to try to write at all. Either this, or let the writing be the work "on the side," indulged in for satisfaction, and with no eye to gain.

Police and reporters always have worked together as detectives. In many instances the reporters have proved to be the better sleuths. Often reporters have been entrusted with police secrets. In the old days these never were betrayed.

When a crime has been committed, the offender knows that the authorities will seek him. For a reporter to say that the police have taken up the hunt is not betrayal of confidence. Of course, they have, such course being in their bounden line of duty.

If police have contrived a certain plan, laid a trap, baited it cleverly, the situation calls upon the reporter to suppress details. The modern reporter seems not to do so. He appears to have lost the fine appreciation of his power to aid the law. He would rather print a sensation than aid the law. So he tells in his paper all about the trap. The criminal, not a fool, walks in some other direction.

All this delights the criminal, but it disgusts the retired reporter of other days, whose code was different.

Lawyers favor the "lawyers' bill. The measure forbids banks to do the legal work, in relation to wills that naturally falls to the practising attorney. It may seem selfish, wholly in the interest of the lawyer. It is not selfish. It is in favor of the testator and the heirs.

The first duty of a lawyer is to his client. The lawyer employed by a bank to draw up wills naturally regards the bank as his client. He is working for that institution. Perhaps without conscious design on his own part, but rather by instinct, he seeks to promote the interests of the bank.

The lawyer in private practice, who ordinarly would have been called upon to draw a will disposing of an estate, loses a customer. This is a mere incident. The real trouble is that the maker of the will has no lawyer to look out for him. The lawyer he seems to have, is serving the bank or the trust company.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

His mother said that Curt Jacobs got his third promotion in two years this week. Now he is beginning to draw what might be classed as salary. Her manner subtly indicated that his success was in spite of my mean-spirited effort to hold him down.

"Can't you help poor little Curtie along?" she asked me after he had been working for the Colossal Bridge Company for two years, during which time the C. B. Co. gave no indication that he was on earth. "You know Old Man Colossal so well."

"Well," I said, "I'll tell Colossal about Curt."

Colossal told me that he did not know Curt, and that he likely never would unless he made himself known. Old Man Colossal said that he hired and fired clerks by the acre without knowing their names. Clerks are the cheapest thing there is except girl clerks. But he is always on the lookout for talent.

"Now it's up to you, Curt," I told him. "Make Old Man Colossal know you. I can do nothing."

His mother has barely spoken to me for two years, and she and Mrs. Pilgrim exchange skilful jabs when they meet. But Curt saw the point. By and by he got a promotion and Mrs. Jacobs gave a green corn feast in honor of the fact and we were not invited, which tickled me to death and distressed Mrs. Pilgrim frightfully. She did not want to go, but she hated to be left out. When he got his second promotion Curt told me how he wangled it:

"I used to study night," he said, "and get posted on some particular angle of our business. When I had the facts down fine I hunted up a boss in that department.

"Why is it that the hickies do not co-ordinate under atmospheric pressure?" I asked.

"Sometimes he told me. He was always glad to tell if he knew. It gave him a chance for a little chest expansion. Sometimes he said he didn't know, and then I kept on the prowl. I upset the whole office trying to find what made bubbles come in noodle ladies. So I got my promotions. And there is another one not three months distant."

Old Man Colossal told me in a fatty moment of good nature, that he is always glad to oblige a friend.

"But I'd rather see youngsters come to the front for themselves," said he, "like that young Jacobs. I want you to meet him some day. He's a fine boy."

REVENUE SLEUTHS TO HIT TRAIL OF INCOME TAX

Collector Goodcell Is Organizing Field Force for Annual Drive

Collector of Internal Revenue Rex B. Goodcell yesterday began the work of organizing his field forces for the annual drive in which widespread investigations of doubtful income tax returns are made. The drive will be under full swing by Thursday.

More than 12,000 income returns will be proved. The taxpayers involved in these investigations are scattered over the entire Southern California district and include men in every walk of life.

Are you one of this brigade of 12,000?

The returns to be investigated are taken from the list of 152,956 which reported incomes under $5000 and 18,856 in the more than $5000 class. The entire field force of the Southern California district will be used in the drive.

"In making this investigation of income tax returns, which, after having been audited, show apparent discrepancies, transcripts are made of the original returns and sent to the field deputies in the district where the taxpayer resides," said Collector Goodcell.

"The taxpayer is asked to verify his return and to explain any items that are not clear to us. He must not feel that we doubt his statements for we are merely questioning his interpretation of the revenue laws.

"Items of income which the taxpayer might not construe as taxable may be so regarded by the department.

"It will be found that the educational value of these interviews is of as much importance to the taxpayer as the amount his assessment may be increased. It will enable him to make a clean return next year. Experience proves that the method of tax investigation we are following decreases the cost of collection through the dissemination of information regarding the income tax laws and other sources of federal revenue. All taxpayers look alike to Uncle Sam. The average citizen does not object to these investigations when he knows that the probe is general and that all the government seeks to collect is the proper legal tax.

"In cases where the audit shows that taxpayers have overstated their taxable incomes through misconstruction of the law or owing to errors in calculation, the person making the return is promptly notified and requested to file a claim for refund. So you see the auditing of returns works both ways."

The essence of power lies in reserve.

LYDIA CLASS HAS GOOD MEETING AT CHURCH

Mrs. J. P. Thompson in Charge of Evening Program

The Lydia class of the First Presbyterian church, held an exceptionally interesting meeting Monday afternoon at the church. Mrs. J. P. Thompson, president of the class, was in charge.

In the morning six of the ladies met in the church parlors and pieced and tied another quilt. This is the third one that has been completed and they are being sent to the Mary Holmes seminary at West Point, Miss. They have also sent three dozen little, fancy sewing bags, for the girls. This school is for colored girls only.

In the afternoon, the regular business session was held. Rev. Louis Tinning spoke to the ladies, emphasizing the importance of calling on and visiting the other members of the congregation. Mrs. J. A. Newton explained "the penny a day" idea as an aid to the building fund for the new church. After this interesting meeting, homemade cake and ice cream were served.

REV. TINNING IN PRESBYTERIAN PULPIT

Preaches From Narrative of Paul's Ship Wreck

Rev. Louis Tinning, assistant pastor, preached Sunday morning at the Presbyterian church. He drew his subject from the narrative of Paul's shipwreck upon the island of Malta—the kind reception of the natives to him and his companions, and his kindness to them in misitering healing to the sick.

In speaking of "social service" one employ a term much used and much abused. We are indeed to minister, but not that merely, it must be in the name of Jesus Christ and for His glory. When Paul left that place doubtless there were those who had been brought to Christ by him. He had been thrown upon the island, drenched and cold, and met welcome and a good fire. There is a cold that may be felt in the torrid zone, the coldest cold in the world, spiritual cold. Men may make the mistake of going to such cold ones and doing all material things of civilizing and cleansing, and leave them just as cold. This is useless. But men have gone to the ends of the earth with the saving gospel, and all such things as soap and sanitation followed in their natural place. Social service absolutely must be first for soul salvation, to be the real thing.

In Revelation God said: "I would that ye were either cold or hot"—one thing or the other. Men say, "Take the middle of the road."—neither one thing or the other. But chill and death come that way. When we read the Word it always warms. And private prayer, how it warms and thrills! And so the family altar, and the meetig with God's people. And again there is Christian service, (not social service). Anything done in the name of Jesus; there is a reward for it. And there is fellowship with God's people, helping and strengthening. The best of all is fellowship with Jesus Christ.

Everywhere we meet opportunities of doing good that will warm us. This program is to be coveted for you, that wherever you are, it can be said that you go about doing good, doing God's will. Not only here, but the uttermost parts of the earth beckon for us, for Christian ministry.

Because of the cold we need a fire. We need to be spiritually warmed to a high degree. All about are men and women ship-wrecked and suffering with great cold; they need the cross of Christ. This saving warmth can only come through Christian people. Let us say, "Come and be warmed and saved by my Savior."

PENINSULA BOOM OCCUPIES S. F. BIG BUSINESS

"Bridge the Bay" Movement Halts On Account of Tunnel

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 25.—Since the halt in the "Bridge the Bay" movement owing to the refusal of Oakland and Alameda, because the proposed tunnel and bridge would bring transcontinental rail lines into San Francisco, as well as giving automobile passage, San Francisco interests have turned their attention to developing the Peninsula as the big residential district of San Francisco.

The question of rapid transportation down the peninsula is now occupying the thought of many San Francisco civic bodies, as well as of organizations in San Mateo and Burlingame.

The necessity for adequate and rapid transit has been made all the more immediate because of the success of Pacific City, the new beach and amusement resort at San Mateo.

The present streetcar system is overtaxed on Saturdays and Sundays, by pleasure-seekers, and the same is true of the Southern Pacific train system.

Automobile traffic on Sundays sometimes is found 3-machines abreast on the San Mateo highway, and travel over that route is merely a continual parade.

Among the suggestions for aiding the situation the proposed second, or "East side" highway, which is being planned for the coming year and a half. This would parallel the present highway on the east side of the railroad tracks, and would connect with the Bay Shore highway at San Bruno. There is already an "East side" highway from a point two miles north of Belmont to Redwood city, and from there the beautiful "Middlefield road" connects Redwood city and Palo Alto. At present certain stretches of the highway around Belmont and Redwood city need repaving.

Another project for electric transportation is to allow the present Market street railway private line run its interurban cars through the Twin Peaks tunnel, and then back onto the old line at Daly City. This would avoid running the cars on the surface through the crowded Mission district, and furnish transportation quicker by many minutes.

Another plan is to establish an up-town elevated terminal for the Southern Pacific at Seventh and Market, which would connect with the present system below the Portro district. The system would be electrified as far as San Jose eventually.

A long-standing plan, not yet ready for execution, is to build an elevated road from the Ferry building up Howard street, and thence across Mission on the old Ocean Shore Line's right-of-way to a point near Colma, where it would go back on the surface.

Under the stimulus of better transportation facilities, the San Mateo-Burlingame section is experiencing a building boom in a small way.

HUNDREDS OF GUESTS ATTEND RECEPTION GIVEN AT BURBANK PLANT OF MORELAND COMPANY

Supervisor Henry W. Wright and Sheriff William Traeger Among Many Visitors at Open House Party Held Here Last Friday Night

CANDIDATES DELVER SHORT ADDRESSES

Guests Inspect Factory and Learn How the Famous Moreland Trucks Are Manufactured; Dance Held in Assembly Hall at Plant

With hundreds of persons attending and with those present taking an active interest in the enjoyable affair, the open house reception at the Burbank plant of the Moreland Motor Truck company last Friday night proved to be unusually successful.

The guests at the reception included Henry W. Wright, candidate for re-election as supervisor of the Fifth district, and Sheriff William Traeger, who is also seeking another term, both being highly esteemed by Burbank citizens and sure to capture a majority of votes in this city.

Dozens of officials and other leaders at the plant served as the reception committee, greeting all of the visitors and looking after their needs and personal comforts.

J. B. Moreland, one of the founders of the company, remained at the door of the general offices during the early part of the event and personally greeted each of the visitors and during the latter part of the entertainment devoted his energies in seeing that everyone was enjoying himself or herself.

After the guests had assembled at 8 o'clock, one hour was devoted to the inspection of the plant, competent guides showing the visitors through the plant and explaining how the world-famed Moreland trucks are manufactured.

Following the inspection of the plant, the visitors gathered in the large assembly hall, which is on the second floor of the office building, and dancing was featured. Refreshments were served.

Owing to a sudden call elsewhere, Watt L. Moreland, vice-president and general manager of the firm, was unable to be present.

A short address delivered by Supervisor Wright, who related his record both as supervisor to fill an unexpired term and also as a member of the exemption board during the war. He paid high compliments to the Moreland company, saying that it has developed into one of the largest plants of its kind and that it products were noted throughout the world.

Sheriff Traeger's talk was very, very brief.

"When I go out the door take a look at me and if I look like a sheriff then vote for me," said the sheriff.

Supervisor Wright and Sheriff Traeger were loudly applauded following their remarks.

The trip through the plant afforded the guests an opportunity to learn the details of truck making.

During the tour the guests were shown the large tool room of the plant, the room containing all sorts of tools used in making truck parts and in building trucks. Practically all of these tools are made at the Moreland plant.

The visitors were shown the transmission cases manufactured by the company, how the cases are made and set up and then tested for hours at the plant in order to make sure that they are perfect before assembled in the truck. Some of the parts for the transmission cases are, like the cases, made at the plant.

The woodworking department proved very interesting. In the office of this department is where the designs for the bodies are made, the orders going from the office of that department to the woodworkers, who are very skilled and are able to turn out truck bodies that even the most eccentric person might want.

In the "rattler" department, a very noisy department when the employees are working, and for that reason gained its name, the visitors were shown how the truck parts are trimmed and brightened before being used. An acetylene flame burns the rough corners off the parts and then they are put into revolving crates, where they are polished.

The parts also go through the sandroom, where an artificial windstorm of sand, which also smooths off the rough edges, making the parts fit into their proper places.

Everything from a small washer to a truck completed, with the exception of the bed, was found in the iron room. In this room is where the various iron parts of a truck are cut and assembled, including the welding of the bolts by electricity.

The huge melting pots, or vats, at the plant are a source of wonder. By means of electricity, iron and steel are melted in these vats in a short time.

The company has a large assembly room, where the body and the skeletons of the trucks are put together and are then ready for delivery after being thoroughly tested.

J. B. Moreland, better known either as "judge" or "dad" by the older employees of the plant, for several years was in charge of the woodworking department, designing many trucks for commercial, passenger and personal use.

"Judge," so called because he once served as a justice of the peace back in his old home town in Indiana, designed what is said to be one of the largest trucks in the world. The truck, which was 24 feet in length, was made for the Crown Transfer company.

"Judge" also designed a "house on wheels" for a California woman, who formerly lived near Fresno.

This "house on wheels" was eight feet wide and fifteen feet long. The wood was finished mahogany, even the floors. The truck was divided in a number of small compartments. The bedroom contained a bed and a dresser, the dressing room containing a wardrobe for clothing and a collapsible table, the kitchen being fitted with appropriate furniture, the bathroom being fitted for shower baths.

Ample space for the driver and also a 65-gallon water tank were included.

Among the many other designs made by "Judge" were those for busses for school children. Recently three school busses were returned to Moreland's to be remodeled and repaired, the school authorities relying more on the judgment of the Moreland workers than that of others,

The new superintendent of the plant, C. R. Stearns, is very efficient and also is well liked by the employees of the company. Like "Judge" Moreland, Mr. Stearns is a resident and great booster for Burbank.

Other officials of the firm render efficient service and with the aid of skilled workers, have succeeded in making the company one of the most noted in the world.

The firm employs from 400 to 500 men and their monthly payroll amounts to thousands of dollars, for the most part this payroll going to Burbank.

Many persons have inspected the plant recently, owing to the sale of stock by the company, and in nearly every case after the prospective stockholder has been through the plant and shown how the firm operates, he has left the plant as a stockholder.

WEED FIRE IS STARTED BY PIPE

Altadena Man Starts It and Is Fined Fifteen Dollars

R. G. Nelson of Altadena was today charged with setting fire to weeds on the parking at Colorado and Sierra Vista streets, Eagle Rock. The complaint was made by Charles L. Cates, a driver for the city street department, who saw the fire.

Mr. Nelson explained that he was coming from San Fernando, and had a trailer attached to his car. At Colorado and Sierra Vista he had a blowout, and stopped to fix it. He had a pipe in his mouth, and, while changing his tire, set fire to the weeds. He tried to put the fire out, but was afraid that he would set fire to his load of hay on the trailer, so he drove off. He was followed by Mr. Cates, who turned in the complaint.

Mr. Nelson told his story to the judge, but was fined $15 in court this morning. Mr. Nelson said he had been a member of the city council in Owaeonna, Minn., for ten years, and was surprised to find the parkings in such a fast growing city as Eagle Rock in such a condition, covered with weeds.

RIDING IN ROTTEN ROW

LONDON, Aug. 25. — Riding in Rotten Row has become so rotten that liverymen are demanding deposits when they hire "hacks." I don't expect to see half the people come back alive," the head groom of a big livery stable said; "I don't mind if they don't. It's the horse I'm thinking of. They get on, chuck the horse in the mouth, and go off. I feel like taking a day off every time a good rider comes along."

ELECTRIC SIGNING OF EAGLE ROCK AWAITS ACTION

Discussion of Advertising Has Been Without Result Up to Date

Some months ago, the matter of securing electric signs to be raised at the east and west ends of Colorado, and at the city limits on Central avenue, was a much agitated question before the chamber of commerce and residents of Eagle Rock.

The plan was first proposed by a member of the chamber, and met with the approval of the majority of the membership. Money to cover the cost of the signs, it was planned, should be raised through solicited donations. After much solicitation on the parts of several enthusiastic members, it was thought that the whole amount necessary could not be secured.

It was then proposed that only two signs be raised, these to be placed on Colorado. This proposition met with objection, due to the fact that property owners on Central avenue did not consider it fair to have both of the signs on Colorado boulevard, and that as long as the funds had been solicited for three signs, the chamber would not be able to change the purpose, and use the funds for only two.

Another suggestion was then made, that met with approval of various members of the organization. This involved the placing of an electric sign on the hillside, north of Colorado boulevard. The same proposition of gaining the consent of the contributors in the disposal of the funds again prevented this plan being carried out. Finally, it was found that the city was not in a position to pay for the lighting of the signs, at that time, and the plans for installation carried. So the matter has stood, for a period of months, until some action could be taken to come to a decision.

The proper study of womankind also is man.

A carrier for spare wheels on automobiles has been invented that is equipped with a lever to aid in lifting the weight from the ground.

A HOME OF SIMPLE CHARM

The American home is said to reflect the taste and personality of the family. The architect draws the plans of the house, the builder constructs it, but those who make the home are the people who live within it.

The original occupants of a house may have gone elsewhere, but the atmosphere created by the gifted builders is destroyed only by the destruction of the house itself.

Here we have a house of undeniable charm and simplicity. The front door leads you right into the living room. The hall to the left connects with all the rooms. A beautiful interior plan because of its conservative layout.

How many people stop to realize what a blessing it is to have good plumbing in the home? Water, Ventilation, Heat, the Joy of the Bath—these make for comfort and good health.

KEITH BROOKS AT CITY HALL CLASS

Speaks From Third Chapter of John to Presbyterian Men

In our lesson of last Sunday, the third chapter of John, we saw Jesus talking to a man a great teacher. In the fourth chapter He is talking to a woman, a bad character. Both are in the same state, unsaved and needing the waters of life.

We see Jesus sitting at Jacob's well located near Sychar. Jacob's well is exhibited to this day. Its position near Sychar and its importance as shown by its size, proves its identity. It would probably be impossible in all Palestine to draw a circle of such limited diameter and say, "Within this circle the Savior of the world stood." There is no doubt as to Jesus' being at this very well.

There came a woman of Samaria to draw water. Jesus asked her for a drink. Christ chose on two occasions, the hated Samaritan to teach His lessons. He used the Good Samaritan in His great parable of true humanity, and now He uses a profligate Samaritan woman to teach the great lesson of the waters of eternal life.

Jesus spoke to the woman first. He employs different methods from those used by Nicodemus, but He brings her to the same point. He had no stereotyped plan of dealing with people. Individual cases were treated according to their peculiar circumstances. Some religious leaders today seem to think that men may be dealt with spiritually in the mass. They talk of social salvation as if it were possible to run society into a mold like so much metal, but society is comprised of individuals each with his own peculiar problems to be met, and individual salvation is all that is presented in the Word of God. Jesus here makes use of an ordinary incident of daily life to open up spiritual matters, lifting up the vacant moments while He waited at a well, in personal work. The incident became the turning point in a woman's life and led to the evangelization of the whole city.

The woman at first thought it strange that He being a Jew, should ask a drink of her. Prejudice of race and contempt of woman are passed over by Christ as if He knew nothing of them.

The woman, having had her desire for this gift kindled, says, "Connect me up with this spring." In order to connect her up it is necessary to do some cutting, to use some sharp tools. He now brings her face to face with her own condition. Salvation is not had just for the asking. One must thirst for it. All Christ's invitations are addressed to a sense of need. When we see our true condition we will thirst. Jesus said, "Go, call thy husband and come hither." The woman is forced to admit that she is living with one who is not her husband and that she had done so with five others. There could be no spiritual satisfaction until sin was brought out and gotten rid of. She might have said, "That has nothing to do with my request." Yet it had much to do with it. It was the first step toward granting it, for the first work of God is to convince of sin. It is better that Christ's searching eyes should burn through us now than that we should suffer loss at His coming.

Having been born into Christ's kingdom, we read that the woman left her waterpot and went to the city to tell what had happened. This natural touch to the story speaks volumes. The living water was already beginning to spring up within her. She was so full of he story she forgot what she came for. Many have met Christ in the way and have gone off on different errands. The disciples left their nets to be fishers of men. The Samaritan woman leaves the waterpot to carry the water of life to others.

Go back to Jesus' request. "Give me to drink." Did He get it? Evidently His parched tongue was forgotten in the thirst for souls, even as the waterpot was forgotten by the woman. There is one satisfaction that Christians can give Christ in return for what He has done for us—quench His thirst for souls.

A delegation from the Men's class of the Tropico Presbyterian church attended.

POLICE ATHLETIC MEET TO BE STAGED

Pacific Coast and Canadian Men to Take Partin Events

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 28.—Bluecoats of the Pacific Northwest and the Canadian Northwest will compete here September 9 in a track and field meet as the first event of its sort ever staged in the northwest. The Seattle Police Sports association is sponsoring the meet, which will be made an annual affair.

Cops from all the principal cities of the two sections, with a liberal sprinkling of guardians of the peace from smaller communities, are expected to be on hand and dash madly about for the honor of their respective forces and constituent taxpayers.

Several former Olympic stars will be entered, including Gus Pope, national discus champion; Detective Jack Cameron, of Vancouver, B. C., all-around athlete; C. E. Walsh, weight man, of the Seattle force; Frank Farr, holder of the Canadian 10-mile title, and J. A. Smith, Seattle marathon runner.

In addition to the regular field and track events, there will be special races for officers, and one for chiefs, while much powder is expected to be burned in the rifle and revolver events. Sandwiched in with the police events will be several open contests to attract civilian athletes, and the chances are some cops will pace side by side, and strain for the tape with certain modest persons whom they no doubt have pursued along the old beat with no spectators present.

There will also be several pistol matches, in which the officers will be tested to see who can miss a target, hypothetically supposed to be a dangerous criminal, the most times per hundred. Inspectors and captains of police will not deign to run a full 100 yards, but will confine themselves to a 75-yard race, befitting their dignity.

RAILROAD STRIKE BENEFIT PLANNED

At the regular meeting last night of the Carpenters' local, No. 563, held at the K. of P. hall, corner of Park avenue and Brand boulevard, further plans were made for a dinner and social evening to be held October 11, for the benefit of the families of the striking railroad crafts.

Tickets will be 50 cents and the proceeds will be to relieve these strikers.

In remuneration for the services rendered by the carpenters' local union, in constructing the Central Christian church, the pastor, Rev. C. A. Cole, has extended the union an invitation to attend the services next Sunday morning.

THE WASPS ATTACK THE MINK

By JOHN BARTON

Oh, wasn't that the buzzy, busy nest of wasps old Stripes Skunk and little Frisk Squirrel sent to call on the mink in Nibble Rabbit's old tunnel!—and weren't they sociable! They flew right down it to meet her. She was just backing out of the little secret runway she was fixing for herself to creep through. This was the last load of earth she'd have to clear out of it. She was only a paw's reach from where it ended in the grass under the roots of the thorn.

They Flew Right Down It to Meet Her.

"Gr-r!" she gritted to herself as she kicked the dirt behind her. "Let 'em bring their old dogs. They'll never find me. And as soon as they get good and busy on those two end holes I'll be on the move. Once I reach that Muskrat Pond it'll take a fish with wings and claws to catch me."

Brzz! brzz! brzz-z-z! "Ow!" she felt a sting. Slap! slap! she felt another one. Buzzers! how did they come in here? Somebody must have put 'em there. The tunnel was full of them. She'd bet a duck's egg it was that coon!

But she didn't have time to do much wondering. She tried to dodge into her little runway. But buzzers stuck to her ears, and she had to back out again to squash them. A dozen more lit on her face. She started back in again, but she couldn't stand the stinging. She had stingers all over her by this time. She ran up and down the tunnel, fighting and swearing at them. They were worse at the upper end. She paused at the lower. It was half full of the loose dirt she had been digging. She squirmed in under it to get away from the load of wasps who were riding on her back and running their hot spurs into her. For a wasp's a whole lot worse than a bee. His stinger keeps on working over and over again.

Scritch! scritch! The stone rolled away from the doorway. "Woof!" barked a loud voice. "Mink!" She felt a dog's hot breath blow over her. It was Tommy Peele's Watch. A paw reached in and scooped half the earth from on top of her. She dashed to her secret runway and bored into it as fast as her feet could push her. Sting or no sting, she dared not turn back. Growling with rage and pain she tried to push her way up through the leaves. But she still had to clear away the tough-rooted tangle of the weeds that had grown up since Miner Mole used to pass that way. What a time she had getting through them!

If she'd only known, she missed an easy chance to dodge out of the door Tommy Peele's old dog had left wide open. For he had moth his eyes squinched shut, and was batting buzz-wings with both paws. Dr. Muskrat had said "What's safe for us is safe for our enemies." He hadn't remarked "What's bad for our enemies is bad for us," but it was just as true.

CHILDREN'S CHUM HAS PASSED AWAY

Robert S. Milligan Mourned by Little Ones of His Neighborhood

Robert S. Milligan, who passed away Saturday, August 19, was born at Kirksville, Ohio, January 5, 1847. Leaving Ohio at the age of 16, he went to Davenport, Ia., from which place he enlisted in company B, 8th infantry, at the age of 18. He served from August, 1864 to 1865, in the Civil war, receiving his discharge at Memphis, Tenn.

He was married to Miss Mary F. Brooks in June, 1871, at Humboldt, Kansas. He was the father of seven children, five of whom are living, and three of whom were present at the time of his death.

Mr. Milligan was a man of sterling qualities. He was a devoted husband, a loving and indulgent father, a kind and obliging neighbor and a man who held the respect and esteem of all who knew him.

He was particularly fond of little children and used to fill his pockets with bags of candy for them. They in return showed their love for him by playing quietly when near his home.

Mr. and Mrs. Milligan celebrated their golden wedding anniversary in June, 1921.

CARRIERS' PICNIC DRAWS BIG CROWD TO CITY PARK

Despite the Hot Waether Everyone Enjoys Day in the Open

The fact that it was a hot day in no way interfered with the success of the letter carriers' picnic at Glendale-Verdugo park Saturday afternoon. Letter carriers are used to spending hot days out-of-doors, and it was such a treat to cast off their mail sacks and be boys again to all intents and purposes, that they gave no thought to the weather, especially as there were plenty of cool drinks to be had. Their wives, children, sisters and sweethearts were all there, too, the picnickers numbering not less than 600 merrymakers.

Interest, of course, centered in the various athletic contests and in the dancing progrram, which kept the music going until a late hour. So resourceful is the carriers' association it did not have to import music, but used its own Kaufman's orchestra, and there were no complaints of the quality of the jazz turned out.

The big event of the afternoon was the men's free-for-all foot race in which first prize, a Baldwin silk shirt, was won by Assistant Postmaster George Hallett. He is to have the privilege of selecting the style and material, and will probably be required to wear it at all meetings of the Carriers' association.

He also tried to get away with the prize of five gallons of gasoline offered for postoffice supervisors, as a matter of default, but, having no competitor, was ruled out. Fate seemed to be with him, however, for he won it later as an attendance prize.

The foot race for postoffice clerks only was not run, and there was no tug-of-war.

No record was kept of the recipients of prize waltz trophies.

Following is the list of winners:

Foot Race—Boys Under 9 Years

First prize—Order for boys' flapper suit, donated by Ed. Nisle, 135 South Brand, E. Van Wie.

Second prize—Kiddie Kar, donated by Brenkman Electric company, 1428 South San Fernando road, E. Sebastian.

ARTHUR CAMPBELL TELLS STORY OF SHARPE ESTATE

Experience Is Typical of Glendale Property Movement

Arthur Campbell, real estate operator, has an interesting tale to tell of his experience with the Sharpe estate at Cypress and San Fernando which is typical of Glendale and the movement of property here.

This Sharpe estate consisted of 3 1-2 acres with frontage on Mariposa as well as San Fernando and Cypress. It was improved with a 2-story house. The original owners were pioneers and it had been in the Sharpe family for about 35 years. Mr. Campbell and J. B. Whitaker about six weeks ago purchased the property from the heirs at a court sale. They subdivided it into 24 lots and within the past month more than $30,000 of the lots have been sold.

The San Fernando frontage of 12 lots, which were purchased by clients of Mr. Campbell in Santa Barbara, brought $65 to $90 a front foot.

Other business and residence lots in the tract were sold to the following buyers: A. L. Crosswell, Miss Whiting, William and Helen Ralph, Miss Mary L. Hull, Miss Maude Budwick, Miss Anna England, Miss Jean Watt, Miss Katherine Long, and J. Humphries, these sales, together with the San Fernando frontage bringing $33,400. The residence was sold to a Mrs. Porter who recently arrived from the east, for $4500. She has remodeled it and is occupying it as a home. Two lots are yet unsold on Cypress and 8 on Magnolia avenue, ranging in value from $1200 to $1600 each.

When asked about other sales, Mr. Campbell said: "Within the past two weeks a nice home-site has been sold to Mr. Lyons on lot 14, of the Jones' home tract, North Cedar street. He will improve it with a residence and make it his home.

"A business lot has been sold on Los Feliz near Brand to Miss Lyle, a Los Angeles business woman, who bought for investment.

"Two other business lots on Central avenue south of Los Feliz road were sold to Mr. Cravens of Chicago, who has recently come to Glendale to live.

"Miss Mary F. Jenkins, a teacher, who has been living in Glendale, has purchased for a home a residence at 1308 East California.

"Mr. Fox, who has just arrived from the middle west, has bought a house and lot at 435 Garfield street."

Mr. Blakesley, who came to Glendale from Los Angeles, bought through Mr. Campbell a residence at 308 East Sycamore canyon road, just over the line in Eagle Rock. He bought for a home.

"A residence at 1023 Mariposa street has been sold to Mr. and Mrs. Martinez, who have been living in Glendale for some time.

"An attractive home-site in Eagle Rock was sold to Mr. and Mrs. Welch, who have been living on going east and on their return will improve the property with a residence.

"A home-site has been sold to Mr. and Mrs. Harshman, who have been living on East Elk. The property they have purchased is on Maple between Central and Brand. Mr. Harshman is a builder and will construct a home there in the near future.

"All these sales," Mr. Campbell said, "have been made within the past six weeks and illustrate the activity of property. A good many of the sales to non-residents were all cash transactions."

His August business, he says, compares very favorably with that of last year for the corresponding month, in the number of inquiries and sales made.

'NICE PEOPLE' AT THE T. D. & L. THEATRE

Notable Cast Is Gathered for Big Production of De Mille

All-star casts are much discussed but seldom seen. But there was a real cast worthy of the all-star brand chosen for William de Mille's Paramount production of "Nice People" now being shown at the T. D. and L. theatre.

Heading the list of notables in this screen play is Wallace Reid, who gives one of the best characterizations of his screen career. Bebe Daniels, star in her own right and member of several other genuine stellar casts; Conrad Nagel, a veteran of de Mille all-star productions, and Julia Faye, who has won high praise for her work in several recent de Mille pictures.

The story of "Nice People" is a fitting vehicle for this galaxy of talent. It deals with the problems and dangers confronting the modern girl and her "jazz" tendencies. The theme is timely and powerful and the producer has presented it in a manner that is certain to entertain the spectator immensely.

A supporting cast which includes Claire McDowell, Edward Martinel, Eve Sothern, Bertram Johns, William Boyd and Ethel Wales equals the record set by the stellar principals in this picture.

THREE DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATES FOR OFFICE HERE

Glendale Amply Represented at Democratic Primary Today

Three Glendale candidates appear on the democratic ballot in today's primary election.

First is Mattison B. Jones, candidate for nomination for governor, who has been a resident of the city for many years, during which he has practiced law in the Los Angeles courts. He is a favorite local orator, and holds high rank in the Masonic orders, having filled the office of Grand High Priest with unusual efficiency. He owns a large amount of property and has been prominent in all movements for civic betterment, and in social circles, having a large acquaintance which includes many very warm friends.

The other two Glendale democrats are candidates for a place on the county central committee, and are Mrs. Marie Larkey, who has been in the employ of the county and who has been an ardent democrat for years; and Miss Elizabeth Smith, of North Central avenue, who has been an active member of the democratic club and rendered efficient service during previous campaigns.

PARDON MY NERVE AT THE GLENDALE THEATRE

Charles Jones in New Fox Film Is Clever Horseman

Charles Jones, the William Fox star, who has jumped to the front rank of screen favorites in the past year, will be at the Glendale theatre tonight in his latest picture of western life, "Pardon My Nerve!" Those who have followed this clever horseman know that he has shown considerable nerve as well as increasing acting ability in each succeeding picture in which he has appeared. The natural conclusion is that he will out-nerve anything he ever has done when you see him in "Pardon My Nerve."

It is said he underwent special prepaartion for this picture in order to get up extra speed and additional power for the battles in which he has to take part.

Eileen Percy is Jones' leading woman in this offering, the story of which was written by William Patterson White.

Invest in the Production and Sale of Oil with experienced oil men!

Through the participating interests in the Hamilton Oil Syndicate, you will associate yourself with experienced, practical oil men who are primarily interested in the production and sale of oil.

This is the type of investment that will appeal to the investor who wishes to place his money where he can reasonably expect a satisfactory return.

Every calculation that can be made on the probable returns on oil investment should be based on conservative figures of average production.

The Hamilton Oil Syndicate owns two properties, one at Huntington Beach and one at Santa Fe Springs. As per figures we have taken, the average is 200 barrels per well per day at Huntington Beach and 2000 barrels per well per day at Santa Fe Springs. On these very conservative figures the profits to the investor are such as should be beyond the wildest dreams.

It is the type of investment that should appeal to the cautious, shrewd investor, the man or woman who knows that money can be made from oil, who want to place their money where every possible element of risk has been, so far as is practicable in the oil business, eliminated.

Both wells are near completion. The well at Santa Fe Springs is now below the 3900-ft. mark. The oil indications are remarkably good and the gas pressure unusually heavy. The famous drilling contractor, John (Jack) McKeon, is drilling both wells.

50% of the Net Oil Goes to Subscribers

Hamilton Oil Syndicate is selling definite participating interests in the net oil from these wells. That is what the investor in oil should seek. The real money in oil is made from this source and not from the purchase of land, etc. The oil pays the money, therefore invest in the oil.

Write us without delay or call and get the full details of this proposition. It is open to your inspection in its entirety. We will gladly show you the properties and court the fullest investigation of our plan. Use the coupon—it will save you time.
